SolomonEdwards' provided a seasoned Project Manager who joined the client's project team in intensive training on the new platform and development of models already in progress.

SolomonEdwards simultaneously provided project management, process development and documentation, while helping the client to develop models and build dashboards. These analytics helped to uncover insights that had been previously unavailable to the client by providing a method of quantifying text data, determining the sentiment of the data, and understanding the unstructured text data relative to structured data.

PROJECT MANAGEMENT | CREDIT CARD PORTFOLIO CONVERSION

SolomonEdwards supported a multinational financial services corporation with the complex issues inherent in purchasing, onboarding and converting a cross-network credit card portfolio, efficiently providing flawless technical and servicing execution, and delivering a seamless onboarding experience, with frequent, clear communications and minimal disruption to customers.

SALES ENABLEMENT | PMO MODEL

Following a significant sales force reorganization, our global technology client needed an aggressive approach to drive change among sellers. Our Managed Service solution included establishing a Program Management Office model (PMO) to lead the cross-functional effort. The PMO included a lead and tactical support to help engage stakeholders across the business, and organize a team to drive the required work. The PMO guided the work of the tracks, ensured consistent messaging across the program, engaged executive stakeholders, and reported to leadership funding the initiative.
